Gordon has been in the Construction and Design industry for 30+ years, starting at a young age as an apprentice at his father's construction company. He learned the craft by watching, doing, and asking lots of questions. After high school, Gordon attended the Art Institute of Colorado and earned a Bachelor's Degree in Industrial Design focusing on architecture, furniture design, environmental space planning and color theory. After so many years of "constructing", Gordon imagined that sitting behind a desk would be a nice change of pace, but instead he found himself drawn back into the design and construction and assisting clients with how their vision can become a reality.

An expert in design, Gordon will care for your home as much as if it was his own. He chose his Labrador, Noah, as the mascot for his company logo because he's handsome, but mostly for what Gordon values and for what a Labrador is known for: openness, noble, friendliness and loyalty.
