From residential homes to small offices and churches, Lorraine has used her design talents to meet the needs of her clients since 2000 when Lorraine Interiors formally began. Although she offers full interior design service she welcomes smaller projects and specializes in paint color consultations. Her formal training is from Heritage School of Interior Design.

For over 30 years she has been happily married to her husband, Steve, and together they have three boys and two daughter-in-laws. Some of her hobbies include family dinners, hiking and taking walks with friends, leading a women's group, eating popcorn, and forever "editing" her own home.

Lorraine jumped into the interior design business because she loves being at home and believes that a comfortable, beautiful home is very important in the life of a family. It sets the mood for great family dynamics. This is also true for commercial spaces, setting the mood for good relationships among co-workers as well as with customers. Her basic approach to design is "to blend the old and well-loved with the new and practical".
